This exhibition is also a tribute to John Sillevius (1946-2024). In addition to his work as an art historian and curator, John Sillevius is less well-known as an artist. He recorded impressions he gained on his travels in drawings and watercolors. And he made medals with portraits of people he met on his travels, of friends and artists. Cast in Murano glass.

For Teun van Staveren, 2023 has been an extremely productive year. We are the first to show a series of new bronze sculptures by this sculptor.

Khairzul Ghani is the winner of the prestigious Dutch Portrait Prize 2023. He mainly works with oil paint and excels in the subject of portrait, figurative and landscape. He expresses and interprets through his bold colours, lines and brushstrokes, inspired by the styles of expressionism, fauvism and post-impressionism.

Jaap van Ek shows the vulnerability of men and boys in his paintings. His portraits are characterised by bright, fresh colours and imaginative backgrounds that also form a layer in the figures. For a year now, he has also been embroidering portraits with silk threads on cotton.

Gert Lammerts' photography shows his preference for clarity and minimalism in which the subject is always positioned within a subordinate environment. He likes to work with dancers. Their flexibility makes many poses possible, lines and directions can be accentuated and muscle masses can be visualised.
